Hudson Highlands Fjord Trail

Our Park Director, Drew Polinsky, has already been working with local and county emergency services providers to learn about their unique challenges with rescue calls in the Route 9D trail corridor, in order to determine how HHFT can best support/assist. We will expand that relationship as the trail becomes operational. A statistic of note is that HHFT's improvements of the Nimham Trail and Breakneck Upper Overlook are correlated with the reduction, by more than half, of rescue calls to the Breakneck area this season over last year. These improvements have created a safer and more logical route for many hikers, especially those who are not experienced, and is an example of how trail design can aid in both visitation management and safety objectives, reducing strains on our local first responders.
